STANDING UP FOR YOU

Show Racism the Red Card need your support

Show Racism the Red Card (SRtRC) is the UK's anti-racism educational charity, established in 1996. The campaign works with over 50,000 young people in the UK annually.

“From day one we have relied upon the trade union movement to support our anti-racism work. Although racism has changed in the last 20 years, with the rise of Islamophobia and racism towards asylum seekers and travellers, it has not been reduced. The key to fighting racism is education and we are proud of the role that we have played alongside trade unions in developing key resources and training for adults and young people. Please help us to continue this work by encouraging your branch to make a donation or setting up a standing order to the campaign.”

Ged Grebby, Founder and Chief Executive, SRtRC
